Excitement mounted in the hospital as midnight came and went and still no baby. But finally the happy sisters, nurses, doctors and interns relaxed when they knew for sure the "first" was theirs.

Bells of happiness rang in the New Year for PO A. B. Whittaker, RCN, and his family. Greater Victorians have contributed $3,000 for the family of the navy man, whose Holland Avenue home and furnishings were destroyed by fire Christmas Eve. For the kiddies, Robert, 5½, and Carol, 3½, and Mrs. Whittaker, offers were also made of food, clothing and furniture. They are living in an apartment at 2501 Cook Street, offered rent-free immediately, reports of the fire were published.

CAR KEYS

For Greater Victoria police departments it was a quiet, quiet New Year's Eve. Several persons had turned in their car keys at the city police station up to midnight, but no reports of accidents had come in.

Socially, it was a capacity celebration.

The by-word in all banquet halls, dance halls, clubs and gathering places was "capacity".

At the Empress Hotel groups from all over the Lower Mainland, Vancouver Island and Puget Sound area gathered well before midnight in what the hotel management said was "the nicest party we've had."

JUST FLOWING

Before 11 p.m. crowds were just flowing in at the Sinaloa, Crystal Garden, Olde England Inn, Moraes Steak House, Chez Marcel, the Monterey and dozens of dance spots and community centres.

First tribute heard in Victoria was the big tenor bell in Christ Church Cathedral, which was rung in the half-muffled traditional tolling lament for Canadian fighting men who died in two world wars.

The great bell then rang the Nine Tailors, three tolls of three notes each, which was the ancient English way of telling the surrounding countryside that a villager had died.

The bell began shortly after 11.30 p.m. last year.

WATCH NIGHT

Watch Night services were well attended in many city churches.

At midnight the bells in Christ Church Cathedral rang out unmuffled until 12.15 a.m.

More than 100 people gathered at the Alano Club for one of the best and driest parties celebrated last night. It was sponsored by Alcoholics Anonymous.

Safest place for a "shot" New Year's Eve celebration was found by Langford residents. They held their party in their fire hall.

The Capitol and Odeon Theatres reported only "quiet" crowds just before midnight for the first shows of the new year.

Main city features for today will be the customary civic, military and private receptions for the men of the city and district.

RECEPTIONS SET

They will be held at the following times:

From 9.30 a.m. to 11 a.m.: Garrison officers' mess, Work Point Barracks.

From 10 a.m. to noon: 5th (BC) Coast Regiment, 75th HAA, Bay Street Armory.

From 10.30 to noon: Victoria council, City Hall.

From 11 a.m. to noon: Composite Officers' Mess, Armory.

From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.: Government House; HMCS Malahat, 1380 Esquimalt Road; Canadian Scottish Regiment.

From 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.: Esquimalt municipal hall.

From 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.: Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Cadboro Bay.

Liquor Report Ready

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 60-page report on how British Columbians want their liquor served was turned in to Attorney-General Robert Bonner Wednesday.

The report was made up by a three-man commission consisting of chairman H. H. Stevens, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade; Dean Cecil Swanson of Christ Church (Anglican) Cathedral and George Home, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor (TLC).

Mr. Stevens said the report is unanimous but did not indicate what was in it.

Low Rate Offered To Young Drivers

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Car drivers under 25 years of age who are accident-free and have proved themselves accomplished drivers are to get a break this year from the high premiums they are at present being charged for insurance.

The Wawanesa Mutual Insurance Company has announced that it is going to allow, immediately, a discount of 20 per cent off "A" rates to all accident-free drivers under 25 years of age, who can show that they hold either:

A certificate from B.C. high school driver training class;

Or a certificate showing that they have completed eight hours of "behind the wheel" training, as well as 10 hours of classroom instruction at an AAA approved driving school.

Youthful drivers at present are paying about 33 per cent more for their car insurance than senior drivers.

As an example, the senior driver can get a comprehensive policy for a popular model car for $48.30, but for an under-25 driver the same policy costs $73.50.

With the 20 per cent discount to be allowed the accident-free youth, the premium would be reduced to $58.80, only $10 more than for the senior driver.

W. O. Peterson, underwriter in Vancouver for the Wawanesa Company, says that the experiment is aimed to encourage youngsters to be more safety-conscious on the roads.

"If they know we are saving them money so long as they remain accident-free, we think it will make them more careful," said Mr. Peterson, explaining the new scheme.

Details of the new premiums will be available within the next few days.

Five Sets of Twins Impoverish Family

VILLAGE ST. GEORGES, QUE., (BUP)—Five sets of twins in six years of marriage, and a "solo" son during the off-year have convinced Paul-Emile and Rosa Tremblay that it may be faster to raise children by the dozen—but definitely not cheaper.

Tremblay, 29, a laborer and part-time carpenter who earns between $35 and $45 a week, said he couldn't find enough time in a day to make the money needed to feed, clothe and properly house his family.

"It's getting tougher each year," he said.

Dr. J. A. Bergeron, who delivered the fifth set of twins to Tremblay's 29-year-old wife on December 10, made a frank appeal for aid.

"They're in desperate straits," he said.

"For the children, all under six years of age, there should be 10 quarts of fresh milk per day, five loaves of bread, a gross of baby food cans every week and enough diapers to adequately handle 36 changes in every 24-hour period.

"The supplies they can afford now are miserably inadequate."

The Tremblays were married May 1, 1946.

On February 18, 1947, they became the proud parents of Raymond and Raymonde. The boy-twin, Raymond, died shortly after birth.

On July 18, 1948, Ronald and Ronalda joined the Tremblay family. Exactly a year later along came Jacques and Jacqueline.

In 1950, a single boy was born and she named him Clement.

But again on August 10, 1951, a doctor delivered Jules and Julien, the Tremlays' first set of boy twins.

'Thing' Kills Trapper

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (BUP)—A trapper was found killed Wednesday, apparently by the wild "thing" in the same shack from which a man and woman disappeared five years ago.

Rudolph H. Gaier met his death in the same cabin in which Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes had lived until their unsolved disappearance.

His badly-clawed body was found by Max Shellabarger, the same bush pilot who discovered the earlier disappearance. Shellabarger said it appeared Gaier had attempted to fight off something—what, he did not know. He added that it did not appear to have been as large as a bear.

He was puzzled by three bullet holes in the door apparently fired from a short distance outside and all very close together.

Helicopter May Aid Climbers

GENEVA (AP)—Future expeditions to climb Mount Everest will probably make extensive use of helicopters, Dr. Edouard Wyss-Durant, leader of the first Swiss 1952 Everest expedition, says.

However, the use of helicopters for the actual ascent is "entirely out of the question."

"It would be impossible to use helicopters even to carry climbers to the helicopter ceiling of 16,000 feet," he said, "because a climber requires several weeks of gradual acclimatization."

On the other hand, tons of material and equipment necessary for an expedition could be flown to the base-camp area.

Loss of Tug Established

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bubbling oil slick, fed from the tanks of the missing tug Petrel 420 feet below the surface of the Gulf of Georgia, probably marks the grave of seven crew members.

The position of the Petrel, missing since Saturday, was definitely indicated Wednesday by Capt. John Wigman of the tug A. G. Garrish, one of the several search vessels.

Captain Wigman said the ever-growing slick and readings on his depth recorder leave little doubt that the tug rests on the ocean floor near Cape Mudge on Quadra Island, 150 miles north of here.

Oil Field Claims Termed 'Terrible'

TORONTO (CP)—H. C. Rickaby, Ontario deputy minister of mines, today said, "we have no record of any geologist of the department of mines saying there is oil in the James Bay area of northern Ontario," He added:

"There are no seepages on the French River that we know of."

Mr. Rickaby said leases have been granted for oil and gas, he stated.

"There may of course be oil in the area, but we don't know about it yet."

He said speculation about a huge field, based on present knowledge, is "terrible stuff."

Mr. Rickaby was commenting on an announcement in Edmonton by Overland Industries Ltd. that it had completed arrangements for development work in the field.

This announcement said that Col. Lloyd W. Nelson, associated with Overland, had found numerous oil seepages on the surface in an area about five miles long on the French River.

The announcement envisioned the possibility, based upon generally accepted hypotheses" that the area might yield 400,000,000 barrels of oil.

Mines Minister Kelly, commenting Tuesday night from Smooth Rock Falls, Ont. said discovery of oil is the one thing Ontario needs to round out its economy, but added that "the area will have to be drilled before anyone can say whether there is any oil."

Two Hit-Run Youths End Brief Careers on Foot

A New Year's Eve foot race resulted in two juveniles seeing the New Year come in from the Colquitz Detention Home.

Yesterday morning at 10.35, Mrs. E. C. Scadding, 3330 Doncaster, reported to city police that two boys had backed a car into her car at Cedar Hill and Lang, then left the scene of the accident on the run.

Constables Douglas Grant and J. L. Smith attended the accident, and, with a description of the two boys, set out to find them.

They picked up the trail of the two 15-year-old "hit-and-runners," near Cedar Hill Road, and, reverting to foot, the two constables gave chase.

They ran the two youths to the intersection of Blanshard and Caledonia, where they were apprehended, taken to the city police station and charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident and taking a car without the consent of the owner.

Owner of the car, James A. King, 4141 Carey, had previously reported that his car had been stolen from the intersection of Bay and Bridge early in the morning.

Workers Seek Pay Increases

VANCOUVER (CP) Vancouver's civic workers will try to boost their pay cheques by a total of $2,000,000 when bargaining opens in 1953 contracts.

This represents an average increase of 10 per cent of the estimated 1952 civic payroll of $22,600,000.

The demands will come from every class of civic worker from school teacher to fireman.

If 1952 wage hikes totaled more than $2,000,000—$1,000,000 less than originally sought.

Colonist Staff Marks Holiday

There will be no Colonist published Friday morning in order that the staff may observe the New Year's Day holiday today.

Regular editions will appear as usual Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Actresses Dress for Occasion

"Happy New Year!" chorus York Theatre stars Diana Ricardo and Karen Kadler as they strike prettily appropriate seasonal attitudes. Blonde Miss Ricardo, clad in modern evening gown, represents Miss 1953, while her companion is decked out in garb of a bygone age to represent the old year. Both actresses will appear in "Ghost Train" which opens at the theatre Monday.

Army Subdues Crazed Soldier

MANILA (AP) The Philippines army said 150 soldiers, supported by two tanks and a helicopter, fought a 20-hour battle in Manila's suburbs before subduing a crazed soldier.

Demoted from sergeant, he ran amok Wednesday and killed four other soldiers and wounded four, the army reported.

The siege ended when Pfc. Dalmacio Sargento, 28, surrendered after his wife made frantic pleas over a loudspeaker.

Armed with a sub-machine gun and carbine, he shot and killed three soldiers. Then he fought a pitched battle against overwhelming odds.

Barrages Welcome New Year

SEOUL (AP) Heavy Allied artillery barrages roared a thunderous welcome to the New Year at midnight Wednesday along the snowy Korean front.

Communist big guns replied.

United Nations troops crouched in almost the same snow-covered bunkers they occupied a year ago as they ended 1952's bloody battling to nowhere.

Small patrols of both sides carried on business as usual with occasional "shoot" sharp clashes. The ground action was generally light.

Mayer Tries To Form Government

PARIS (CP) René Mayer, veteran Radical-Socialist politician, today agreed to try to form France's 18th government since the war. Despite their name, the Radicals-Socialists are somewhat right of centre.

Following a brief meeting with President Vincent Auriol in the presidential palace, Mayer accepted the task of trying to form a coalition cabinet which could command a majority in parliament.

Mayer was the fourth leader Auriol had summoned since the crisis which began eight days ago with the resignation of Premier Antoine Pinay, who quit rather than face certain defeat in his 1953 budget policies.

Georges Bidault, two-time veteran in the premiership, Tuesday gave up his efforts. He failed when several leading parties refused to back his demand for wider powers which would end the siege of continuing crisis.

Bidault was the third man Auriol had asked to try to get the leading parties — none of them strong enough to run the government alone — to join a coalition government that could deal with many pressing problems.

Herring Season Complete Loss

VANCOUVER (BUP) — British Columbia's $8,000,000 herring operation was written off Wednesday as a total loss for the 1952-53 season.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union announced its membership had rejected a "final" offer by operators.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Victoria wants to tax people who work in the city but live outside.

The proposed "commuter tax" is aimed at aliens who slink in from other municipalities and year out the streets with their shoes. These intruders also get treated to free police and fire services, the city claims.

Personally I seldom, if ever, catch fire in the city. If I ever did, however, I would be most annoyed to receive a bill for being extinguished. I happen to belong to Langford Volunteer Fire Department, and if any Victoria man catches fire in Langford, my colleagues and I will be only too glad to put him out free of charge.

Put him out of Langford, that is. Then the city can send a hose-and-ladder truck to deal with him. What did the city ever do for me?

If they insist on taxing me for living in Langford and working in town, I will in turn insist upon a tax rebate on any goods I happen to buy in the city. The money I spend in the city goes toward paying property and business tax. And what about people who live in the city and work outside—are they to go scot-free? Not as long as there are liberty-loving men in Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal, Colwood and Langford, sirrah!

Taxation without representation, eh? We'll stage a new Boston tea-party and overturn the Victoria delivery wagons.

It's all very well to tax the people who go into the city every day, but what about the others who go in two or three days a week? They are wearing out the streets, too. Let's make them stop and pay toll every time they enter.

Soon every municipality will be a little Balkan state. We bring you two vignettes of the future.

Scene: Shelbourne Street, midnight.

Big Jake pulled his hat down over his eyes and stepped on the gas. The speedometer of the black sedan slid up to 85.

"We're safe, Spud," he growled. The little haggard man beside him lifted a thumb in assent and tilted back a bottle of whisky. His satisfied gurgle was broken by a shout of alarm.

"Look out! It's a road block."

Big Jake spun the wheel, stamped on the brake, and brought the black sedan to a slithering halt in the gravel. Then he was aware of uniformed men converging upon the car from all sides. The door was wrenched open, and a rock-jawed face peered in.

"What you got in that car?" the man demanded.

"Clams. We're peaceful citizens, just back from clam-digging. Who're you anyway?"

"Saanich Border Patrol," the man said briefly. "Okay, boys, search 'em."

Minutes later, four big crates were standing beside the car. A patrolman smashed the top of one open and examined the contents.

"Just as I thought," he said. "Antiques. A Louis XIII night-table, with hand-tooled wormholes. You guys know there's a 90 per cent duty on antiques entering Saanich from Victoria. Let's go. We're booking you for smuggling."

Scene: A Victoria alleyway at 2 a.m. There's a clatter of running steps.

"Help! That swine shoved me against the wall and grabbed my wallet."

"I'm coming," the policeman shouted. "Gotcha. Got da both of ya."

"Don't hold me, officer. Concentrate on that stiff. He stole my wallet."

"Yeah? What about you? You got City of Victoria papers?"

"Well, no. Er, I'm from Oak Bay."

"A foreigner, eh? Got your passport?"

"Well, no. I sent it in to be renewed, and I just had to get to hospital to see my sick mother."

"You wait there a minute. Now, what about the other guy. Got your papers, mister?"

"Sure, I been a citizen of Victoria 20 years. Here."

"That's fine. Your papers are in order. Good night, and the best of luck to you."

"Hey, wait a minute. That guy stole my wallet."

"Wallet, schmallet. Come with me, you criminal. I'll teach you to enter the city illegally."

Airmen, Soldier Granted Awards

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven members of the RCAF and one army sergeant received awards for Pacific theatre service in the Queen's New Year's honors list, defense headquarters announced Wednesday.

The awards:

M. Edwards, 24, St. James, Man. British Empire Medal—Cpl. Jean Baptiste P. A. Trudel, 31, Levis, Que.

Sgt. (army) Kenneth G. Tutte, 34, Vancouver.

Queen's Commendation for Valuable Service in the Air—Flt. Lieut. Robert E. Burn, 30, of Hespeler, Ont.; Flt. Lieut. Edward R. Wolkowski, 27, of Tiny, Sask.; FO John P. Wilson, 30, Montreal; Sgt. George Howard, 31, West Summerland, B.C.; Sgt. Ludvig C. Polekal, 29, Fernie, B.C.

FO Edwards won the Air Force Cross for "exceptional ability and resourcefulness" as pilot on 26 round trips across the Pacific on the Korean airlift.

The army man, Sgt. Tutte, was decorated for "energy, resourcefulness to duty." He is acting camp sergeant-major at Ebiso camp, Tokyo, through which Canadian troops pass going on recreation leave in Japan. He was wounded in the Korean fighting.

Cpl. Trudel, stationed at the Hanada air base in Tokyo, was cited for skill in the maintenance of aircraft and devotion to duty, which "contributed immensely to the efficiency with which the Korean airlift has been conducted."

Canadian Receives High Honor

LONDON (CP)—The Exclusive Order of Merit, an honor confined to 24 of the Commonwealth's great, was conferred today on Dr. Wilder Graves Penfield, professor of neuro-surgery at McGill University and director of the Montreal Neurological Institute.

The distinction came in the Queen's New Year's honors list, which also created three barons and three baronets, elevated 59 to knighthood and distributed coveted decorations to hundreds of other Commonwealth citizens.

One of the world-recognized leaders in neurology, Dr. Penfield is the author of many books on the subject. In 1941 he published a manual of military neurosurgery. During the war he also invented a cure fr seasickness which became known officially as the "Canadian Motion Sickness Remedy."

Penfield, who will be 62 on January 26, was the lone recipient of the merit award.

The late Prime Minister Mackenzie King is believed to have been the only other Canadian to receive the Order of Merit.

Officials and friends of Mr. King said they knew of no other Canadian to have received the award.

Oddities

VANCOUVER (BUP) — An elderly Vancouver man started a one-man retaliation drive against drunken drivers hitting pedestrians Wednesday night.

Police reported the 70-year-old man started to weave across an intersection, took a look at traffic, staggered up to the nearest car and pounded his fist against the hood. Neither was damaged.

VERNON (BUP) — Sheep-rancher Alan O. Davidson of Vernon said he planned to either dive, jump or be pushed into Okanagan Lake on New Year's Day.

Mayor A. C. Wilde said he would be on hand to make sure that Davidson, founder of the Vernon Polar Bear Club, takes his New Year's Day dip.

The vessel was last heard from December 21 when it radioed its position as 100 miles west of the Hebrides in the North Sea off the coast of Scotland.

Pigs Rush to Market To Beat Price Drop

By The Canadian Press

Pigs were hustled to market in the thousands in most parts of Canada to beat the New Year's deadline when the federal government was to lower its hog support price.

A Canadian Press survey New Year's Eve gave this picture:

Thousands of Manitoba hogs moved into Winnipeg as farmers hurried to get them there before the three-cent price drop January 1 to 24 cents a pound. A run 50 per cent higher than normal began Tuesday at Winnipeg's Union Stockyards and was expected to continue until 1953 was ushered in.

At Edmonton, accumulations at packing plants totaled 40,000 head. Calgary plants reported four times the normal intake.

In Saskatoon, one packing plant alone received 2,500 to 2,000 hogs Monday, compared with normal one-day receipts of 750 to 1,000.

Montreal was the only centre where the livestock market was reported normal. At Toronto, some butchers predicted a drop in retail pork prices as soon as the present supply on the Toronto market is used up.

Grafting Of Kidney Success

PARIS (Reuters)—A youth who had one of his mother's kidneys grafted into him is said to be making a good recovery.

In a fall December 18, the boy crushed a kidney. After the organ was removed, it was found he had been living with only one.

His mother offered one of her kidneys to save her son. Such grafting is believed never to have succeeded before.

Woman Forecasts Peace in Korea

BERLIN (Reuters)—Peace in Korea in 1953 is forecast by Germany's leading woman clairvoyant, Ursula Kardos. The 54-year-old woman, whose "second sight" has made her the consultant of politicians and business men, prophesies a remarkable change in world politics. "The powers who are waging war in one hemisphere will conduct peaceful negotiations in the other," she told reporters.

Truman Rapped On Korea

WASHINGTON (BUP) — A House Armed Services subcommittee criticized the Truman administration Wednesday for failing to make the "maximum" possible use of South Korean troops in Korea.

The subcommittee also rapped the government for not accepting Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek's offer of Chinese Nationalist troops to ease America's heavy combat load.

"The committee accepts the fact that Korea must be preserved as a free nation," the report said. "The committee does not accept the fact that the great brunt of the fighting must be borne by the troops of the United States."

The group, composed of five Democrats and four Republicans headed by Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.), based the report on a tour of American Far Eastern defenses last summer.

President-Elect Eisenhower has said publicly he plans to speed the training of South Koreans. But he has remained silent so far on the possible use of Chinese Nationalist troops.

State department officials said the present administration's decision against their use still stands.

Acheson Declares Reds in UN Haven't Threatened U.S. Safety

Secretary Dean Acheson says disloyal Americans in the United Nations have given the U.S. "a bad name and a black eye," but he insists they have not endangered national security.

Acheson Wednesday told a House of Representatives judiciary sub-committee that "we are doing the best we can" to get rid of undesirable characters on the UN payroll.

"I do agree more drastic measures are necessary," he said, "and more drastic measures are being taken."

In this category, Acheson said, is a forthcoming presidential executive order calling for a full-scale FBI field investigation of the loyalty of all Americans in key UN posts.

Representative Patrick Hillings (Rep.-Calif.) promptly objected that the presidential order appeared to him to be "a sham and a phoney."

But John D. Hickerson, assistant state secretary for UN affairs, told the sub-committee that the state department has found "no evidence justifying a conclusion that there was spying or espionage on the part of American citizens" employed by the UN.

Finance Posts Filled

OTTAWA (CP)—Two senior finance appointments were announced Wednesday by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Kenneth W. Taylor, 53, economist and senior assistant deputy finance minister, moves into the key job of deputy finance minister.

Jean Lesage, 38, parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson, takes up a similar appointment under Finance Minister D. C. Abbott.

Both shifts are effective today.

Mr. Taylor, silver-haired former chairman of the now defunct wartime prices and trade board, succeeds Dr. W. C. Clark, who died Saturday in Chicago.

Mr. Lesage, a lawyer and member of the Commons for Montmagny-L'Islet since 1945, replaces Hon. James Sinclair, recently named fisheries minister. No successor to Mr. Lesage in the external affairs post was named.

Monster Mosquitos Win Medal

BURLINGTON, Wis. (BUP)—The Burlington Liars' Club announced Wednesday that Airman Third Class Harry V. Cumming, Dallas, Tex., was the 1952 winner of a diamond-studded medal shaped like a lyre.

Cummings told this one:

"Last September the government sent me over here to Japan on a tour of duty. Now, talk about mosquitos!

"One night in July, I had turned in for the night when I heard the door open. At first I thought it was one of the other guys who slept in the room with me. When I got a better look I saw it was two mosquitos. They stood nearly six feet tall, and believe me, I was too terrified to move, so I just laid there when they approached my bed.

"Suddenly I heard one of them say, 'Do you think we should eat him here, or should we carry him?'

"After a moment's consideration the other replied, 'Let's eat him here. You know very well if we take him home the big mosquitos will take him away from us.'"

B. H. Lycan, Portsmouth, O., won an honorable mention with one about house painting.

He said: "Recently, I had a cottage to paint, and no ladder. So, I broke two or three thermometers, rubbed my feet and legs with the mercury. It was pretty hot that day, because when I started painting on the sunny side, the mercury kept rising, and I painted all the way to the eaves. Then I walked over the roof to the shady side, and painted that on the way down."

Ninety-two thousand trackless trolleys, buses, streetcars and subway cars carried more than 10 times the earth's population in 1948.

U.S. Dried Milk Limit To Have Little Effect

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe Wednesday indicated that the new U.S. import controls on dried milk products will have little effect on Canadian exports to the U.S. in the first quarter of the new year.

Mr. Howe said in a statement the quotas on dried whole milk, dried buttermilk and dried cream were established for the first quarter of 1953 at the average level of imports into the U.S. during the first two quarters of 1952.

Announcement of the import controls by Washington on Tuesday brought angry talk of retaliation from dairy officials in Canada.

Mr. Howe said preliminary calculations based on Canadian statistics indicate that more than 2,000,000 pounds of dried buttermilk can enter the U.S. in the first quarter of 1953.

Exports to the U.S. of Canadian dried whole milk and dried cream were negligible in the first two quarters of 1952, Mr. Howe said. Quotas for these products for the first quarter of 1953 would be "insignificant."

Canada's Export Position Improved Sharply in 1952

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had an export surplus of $296,600,000 on her foreign commodity trade in the first 10 months of 1952, the Bureau of Statistics announced Wednesday.

The surplus was a sharp change from last year, when this country's imports exceeded exports by $292,300,000 in the first 10 months.

Value of domestic exports in the period this year rose to $3,512,700,000 from $3,155,600,000.

Imports for Canadian consumption, at $3,321,900,000, were down from $3,486,100,000.

For October, value of exports was $372,400,000, compared with $371,000,000 in the same month of 1951. Imports were $376,400,000, compared with $344,100,000 a year earlier.

During October, export prices averaged 5 per cent below the level of a year earlier. Import prices were down 13 per cent, but volume climbed 25 per cent to reach a post-war high for the month.

Trade with the United States in October yielded an import balance of $64,300,000, more than double last year's October deficit of $27,300,000.

The widening of the deficit was due to the sharp increase in the value of imports to $275,200,000 compared with $238,300,000 imported from the United States in the same month last year. This brought the cumulative 10-month import balance to $536,300,000 as compared with $157,200,000 in the like 1951 period.

Domestic exports to the United States were about the same in value both in October and the 10-month period as in 1951. The October value was $206,700,000, as compared with $207,100,000, and the January-October total $1,876,300,000, as compared with $1,898,500,000.

The export surplus with the United Kingdom in October was $12,900,000. In October last year it was $31,500,000. For the first 10 months this year the cumulative credit balance was $333,000,000, sharply above the $143,700,000 total for the corresponding period last year.

Canada's Highway Congestion Expected To Worsen Steadily

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Canadian Good Roads Association estimated today that there would be 3,237,000 vehicles on the nation's highways next year and warned that congestion was likely to grow steadily.

Surfaced Canadian road mileage in 1953, the association said, will total 175,000 miles, of which one quarter will be paved.

"There will, therefore, be 18.5 motor vehicles per mile of surfaced road in the country, and if the present trend continues, congestion on the nation's roads will grow steadily," the association said. "The situation, already critical, will grow worse unless some solution is discovered."

The association, in a review of 1952, said that road building reached record heights, but still failed to keep pace with rapidly-increasing traffic.

It said provincial governments spent a record high of $350,000,000 on highways this year, but the rising cost of materials and labor was presenting difficulties. The provinces are expected to spend even more next year.

TORONTO (CP) — Rootes Motors Canada Ltd. Wednesday announced reductions of $100 each in the retail prices of two models of the Hillman Minx British-made cars, effective January 1.

Bring In the New

As from the embers of a camp-fire which has served its turn on the trail, man now leaves the old year, another milestone in time. The human mind goes forward, as indeed it must, to the new, the unknown, to that which has yet to be formed. We may guess the outline but no one, perhaps, could draw in the contours in advance, on this ground which has yet to be trodden. If experience serves, the new year will not be as rosy as today some may see it, nor as black as the prophets of gloom may forebode. Mankind deals in superlatives, but the natural order leans more towards cause-and-effect, initiative and the long patience of the years. One thing we may be certain of and that is that some 2,500,000,000 people living on the face of the earth will have cherished thoughts of continuing that habitation, in peace if they can.

The task of this century seems to be to harness the reliability and usefulness of the machine to the common ideals of mankind; to secure a result, not in destruction but in construction. Within the last 50 years a 1,000 new doors have opened abruptly to man's knowledge, with no little confusion to the mind. Knowledge requires time to congeal into wisdom. But the heart is a better index. There can be very few individuals of really bad heart in the world. The longings, the aspirations, the dreams which one fashions for oneself may and do differ, but humanity strikes many a common chord in its hopes and wishes for the future. A world at peace, security at home, freedom to work out life's puzzles without hindrance from or to others, these probably encompass the wishes of most in the known world. It may be a realizable ideal, with time.

Here in our own Canada the years have been good to us. What we make of the future will commence at least with ourselves. That may not be all we hope but it will be in direct relationship to that which we attempt, especially within ourselves. It is there that the big gains can be made. The world will master its new-age indigestion in time; man will learn how to apply this new knowledge, these new machines; but until at base and in heart there are better men and better women there will not be a truly better world. In common with all sentient individuals, born to hope as sparks to fly upward, Canadians none the less will look forward to: "A Happy New Year."

With the Men Abroad

On this first day of a new year there could with propriety be a thought given by all of us to the Canadian and other allied servicemen in the Korean theatre of war. The calendar will disclose to them as to us a new page in the book of time, but in that far-off land there will be little to differentiate the new from the old. Men will still stand on guard in trenches and foxholes, guns will still thunder in anger, and all the appurtenances of war will be unchanged.

It is probably true that people at home can do comparatively little to help alleviate their lot. More attention perhaps could be given to providing welfare amenities, and in this connection federal authorities are singularly lacking in either wit or appreciation, or in giving guidance to the public at large. Only the devoted efforts of isolated groups operate to demonstrate to Canadians in the Korean field that they are not forgotten by their home folks.

What can be done this New Year's day, however, is for each individual to pause for a moment and let his or her thoughts travel to Korea in sympathetic understanding of the troops in action there. The power of prayer is not to be doubted, and no better resolution can be given effect to on this special day than for those of us at home to pay silent homage to the sons of Canada for whom the new year of 1953 will seem all too familiar to the old year of 1952.

They also serve, it has been said, who only stand and wait, but the passive role enforced on the home ffont carries with it the obligation to remember with gratitude the men who protect its interests on the battlefront. There are the men in Germany, also, far from home and on tiresome occupational duty, who likewise deserve to have a place in our thoughts.

Cooling the Sons of Freedom

A recent brush at Grand Forks between police and Sons of Freedom demonstrators suggests that in past encounters an effective way of cooling off these hotheads may have been overlooked. This time the cooling process was a literal one. Instead of using force or making arrests to break up the disturbance by the Sons, the police simply gave their bare hides an icy shower-bath from fire hoses. That was enough. Drenched, discouraged and docile, the shivering Sons hurriedly removed themselves from view.

Much more of that sort of treatment and the Sons may at long last conclude that they would look far less silly and feel far more comfortable with their clothes on. Nobody looks more ridiculous, clad or otherwise than a grown man who has been involuntarily drenched with cold water; nor can even the most violent rioters stand up long against a stream from a firehose. In the case of the Doukhobor Sons of Freedom this method of attack—or defense—meets them on their own ground. Students of Doukhobor customs now lean towards the view that their nude parades are not a form of religious fanaticism as was supposed, but a means of embarrassing and annoying others. By making them look ridiculous the embarrassment can be turned in the direction they least intended.

In summer, though, when the sun is hot and water in short supply the Sons of Freedom might not object to a free showerbath. However, another effective treatment is described by Drs. Zubek and Sölberg of McGill University in their recent book, "Doukhobors at War." They tell how an imaginative and resourceful RCMP officer persuaded the Sons to dress themselves after one of their first nude parades in Saskatchewan early in the century. Herding them into a hall, he gave a formal order to dress. When the Sons failed to obey, he nailed the doors open and hung a lantern at each opening. Myriads of mosquitoes then obtained compliance where human persuasion could not.

A sense of humor can be a devastating weapon against exhibitionists of any kind.

SOMETHING FOR CURLERS

Sir,—The Colonist is to be congratulated most heartily for the very timely publication of the articles on curling technique by Ken Watson.

With the opening of Victoria's new curling rink drawing closer each day, the publication of the Watson articles should add some incentive to curlers, both young and old, to become members of the club.

The Curling Club is arranging to have a staff of instructors on hand, but all curlers would be well advised to read and memorize the Watson articles.

UNBANKED TURNS

Sir,—How many realize that the United States this year has paid in lives for the Christmas holidays far more dearly than Great Britain paid for the decisive victory of Trafalgar? Canada lags behind, but only in proportion to her numbers. It will be worse next year. Salesmen are already threatening us with faster and heavier cars for 1953.

Every engineer knows the reason for the holocaust. When a car swings round a corner the momentum increases as the square of the speed. The steering columns of modern cars are so beautifully geared that the driver is quite unaware of the tug. Formerly one had to drag one's car around the corner. Not so now. Human ingenuity saves the driver everything except the catastrophe. But the tug is there just the same as formerly. Either it is taken up by the superb tires, plus the banking of the road, or in obedience to the laws of momentum, the car slides off the road. Supposing the road isn't banked; what then?

Anyone who is interested may stand at the city limits on the Esquimalt Road and see for himself. Some cars strike one, or other, or both of the two telegraph poles; some crash through the plate-glass windows of the Island Weavers' Looms; some trip over the curb beyond the looms and somersault into the garden beyond. Sometimes the drivers crawl out unhurt, even remarking that it is their second accident of the sort during that particular week. Some kill themselves.

Legislation could stop these accidents. It could be made a penal offense to manufacture a car capable of greater speeds than the roads will hold. Alternatively we must pay to bank our roads. What are we going to do about it?

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Sir,—We contemplate the new year, still facing a world full of seriously disturbing influences and strife, with the menace of a third world war.

Should we not firmly resolve conscientiously to attend and support a suitable church, regardless of our church attendance in the past? Let us first be thankful that Christian churches are being maintained and protected under our democratic system. In the quiet of a church, large or small, we may strengthen our faith and find new courage. There, we may find a sanctuary of peace, a feeling of transcendent security and comfort, spiritual assurance and satisfaction, all contributing to a sane, happy perspective with a fuller realization of the higher values of life.

"When two or three are gathered together in Thy Name," the church is a place of worship, devotion, and quiet meditation, a source of spiritual guidance, refreshing inspiration and fellowship understanding. There, guided by the indispensable leadership of qualified clergy, the external influences of greed, selfishness, and gross materialism are clearly discredited and shamed. There, we sense the piercing floodlight of the truth, infinite wisdom and glory of Scriptural teachings and revelations, aided immeasurably by the sincerity of prayer, without which our patterns of life and our professed Christianity have neither meaning nor purpose.

Apart from private meditation in the home or elsewhere, in what better way can we confidently face the unpredictable future than by the guiding light of the Christian church?

"Anything New Besides Me?"

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

Omar Khayyam's moving finger writes and, according to Edward FitzGerald, having writ moves on. Indifferently, I dare say. For neither piety nor wit, we are told, nor even tears, may call the finger back or wash out one single written word.

So it is, also, with the year of grace 1952, departed last night into the limbo of time; neither piety nor wit nor tears will bring it back. It has gone, period.

And, of course, we are glad to see it go, else why the bells at midnight and the smiles and handshakes and Happy New Years and a few other things. And yet, alas, it is one more (year) and so one less to come.

Why should we hail its departure as we do? Was it not good to us while it lasted, twelve solid months of living?

* * *

No year, I suppose, is ever good enough. Always there is a rainbow luring us with a new date inscribed in glowing colors, as though to invite a change of heart or fortune, or both. The change we could make, perhaps, on any day during any year, since time is our own handmaiden, but that would be a lonesome business, unhonored and unsung.

We need company, hence the unanimity with which we stayed up late last night to bring the new year in. I do not capitalize these two magic words, you will note, for they have to earn their spurs yet. Allowing, that is, that we let this new year earn its spurs. I have a notion that a twelve-month hence, supposing us all to be present, we shall be bidding 1953 begone as heartily as we have bid it hello.

It is not the year, then, that matters, except that it adds to a total none of us can entirely ignore, but what we do with it. Which is where those bold but imprudent resolutions come in.

* * *

The flutter of little white votes. There will be enough of them this morning to snow-clad the landscape, including, I daresay, a few of my effete own. One there should be, I know, a do-it-now motto having particular reference to answering letters the day I receive them, and I would fain make such a promise were it not for the shock this would give those patient readers who have all but given up hope of a prompt reply.

Hope, however, never wholly dies; fortunately, for if it did we might as well all have passed on last night in partnership with 1952. And of course hope is at the core of our jollity and the eagerness with which we hang up a new calendar. Pretty some of these are too, and should they really herald a new year they will seem not pretty but beautiful.

There is, always, so much to wish for in a fresh, unspoiled period of grace. At the top of the list this year, as last, there is the aching hope that somehow Korea and the seemingly endless cold war struggle might be reconciled. That alone would make the rainbow of 1953 a reality of deep content.

For the rest, each of us must make of the new year what he can, a sentiment which nevertheless does not inhibit me from adding to the immortal Omar, to wit: May the moving finger touch you all with favor as it passes.

Reports From Ottawa

The Currie report all but ruined the holiday festivities for several hundred servicemen from coast to coast. Orders went out before Christmas to get the books in shape, just in case the Petawawa snafu precipitates a full investigation of the administration of the forces.

It's a safe guess that the report also affected the Christmases of some other service families. The Currie report had said that "army personnel were employed to construct such articles as boats, desks, beds, chests of drawers, coffee tables, chairs, and, in one instance, a child's rocking horse, all for private use and not for government service."

One would assume that any such projects for the manufacture of Christmas presents this year stopped abruptly on Dec. 15, when the Currie report was made public.

In Edmonton Maj. Gen. Chris Vokes, whose son received the above-mentioned rocking horse two Christmases ago, hastened to explain that he and his wife supplied all the materials for the horse except the paint and the hair for the mane and tail.

The paint, he admitted, was government paint. But the hair was scrounged by his batman, who waylaid the milkman's horse every morning for weeks to snitch a few hairs out of dobbin's tail!

* * *

Speeches by Associate Defence Minister Campney in the Commons and Trade Minister Howe at Kingston, Ont., make it clear that the government's strategy vis a vis the report is to minimize its importance and belittle the seriousness of the "generally lax administrative situation" which Currie said he found.

Campney accused the opposition of attempts to indict the minister and embarrass the government by playing up a relatively small matter ... By exaggeration and by irresponsible statements and unreasonable deductions ... they appear to be endeavoring to play politics with the Currie report."

Howe sought to dismiss the report as a "rehash in lurid language" of matters, with which the defense department and the courts already had dealt.

Their approach undoubtedly is a tipoff to the kind of speech Claxton will make as soon as Parliament reconvenes Jan. 12. He likely will tell the Commons that many of Currie's recommendations already have been implemented, and that others are under active study.

* * *

By merely asking the government to rehire Currie to probe further into the administration of military affairs, Progressive Conservative leader George Drew was very canny.

He might have demanded a full dress royal commission investigation. Had he done so, the government could have refused without embarrassment. But Currie was the government's own investigator, hired by Claxton, and praised by Claxton last spring in these words:

"We felt that no better man could be found to do this job if we searched the length and breadth of this country."

So, the Tories say, what could be more fitting than the appointment of Currie to finish the job?

Those who know Currie doubt if he would accept the assignment. But present indications are that he won't be given a chance to refuse; that no further probe is planned except what digging opposition MPs may be able to do in the Commons' committee on defense expenditures.

Santa and the Psychiatrists

(From The Montreal Gazette)

A group of child psychiatrists and teachers, interviewed in New York, declares that the Santa Claus legend is happy and harmless and doesn't hurt a child's development at all. This refutes the arguments advanced by Dr. Brock Chisholm and others, who contend that the myth twists a child's mental attitudes, creating neuroses which may last for life.

The child's adjustment to reality is easy and painless, say the experts. From the age of about five, reason begins to affect the first wide-eyed acceptance, when the child notices that there is a Santa in every department store and that reindeers and sled travel is somewhat inefficient in a day of great airliners. From that point on, it is an easy adjustment to realize that Santa is a symbol, rather than a specific person, that he represents the spirit of goodwill which fills the hearts of millions around the world at this happy season.

It is gratifying to be so fulsomely reassured about the dear old gentleman from the North Pole. The things that have been said about him have been very damning indeed.

The only trouble is that the opinions of psychiatrists are remarkably fluctuating. It can be expected that before the Christmas season is through the opinions given in New York the other day will be bitterly attacked by other psychiatrists.

Through it all, it is nice to remember that Santa himself has never lost faith in his own existence.

A film salesman trying to dispose of one of his products to an independent exhibitor assured him it was "colossal."

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK.

One of Punch's best cartoons was of the gentleman saying: "I asked him how he was. And do you know, he told me!"

Nobody knows how far back that "How are you?" salutation was invented. It is one of the oldest of greetings, some form of it appearing in the most ancient of written records. And even in those old writings, they had enough sense to act as we do now, and give a formal answer to a mere formality of a question.

But yesterday I ran into a new twist of it. I met an old acquaintance who is in his sixties, and very healthy and high-hearted. I cried "How are you?"

"Well," he said reflectively, "I could be younger!"

For a New Year's Day greeting, that just about fills the bill. New Year's is a sort of universal birthday. Whatever our own natal day, we all feel today that a year has just gone off our lives. It gives a far more realistic impression of time spent and gone than does our personal birthday.

My old friend who "could be younger" reflected a moment after he had responded to my greeting.

"Do you know," he said, "I wouldn't trade by sixties for my fifties; nor my fifties for my forties. And so on, right back down the line. I wouldn't be a day younger than I am. I don't say I couldn't wish I had done some things differently than I did; but it would be too risky to try to do them over again. I might do worse.

"One thing to be said for time that is gone: it is safely behind us."

And with this cheery thought, he shook my hand warmly and wished me a Happy New Year.

Oldest Greeting

"Happy New Year," said in one way or another, is probably the world's oldest and most universal holiday greeting.

The coming of the new year has been marked and celebrated since prehistoric time. It has not always been January 1, however, and even now many peoples celebrate some other date as New Year's Day, says the National Geographic Society.

January 1, in fact, is an arbitrary date set by the Romans before Julius Caesar established the calendar that is the basis for the date used in most Western countries. January 1, in ancient Rome, marked the day that consuls and other officials took office, and until Caesar set things straight it was sometimes juggled considerably for the political benefit of one office-holder or another.

An error in Caesar's calculation (365¼ days), however, allowed January 1 to creep away from its original astronomical place, and by 1582 when Pope Gregory XIII instituted the reformed Julian calendar in use today, spring's first day had gained 14 days on the stars. Gregory in 1582 ordained that October 4 be followed by October 15, thus adjusting the calendar to A.D. 325, the year of the Church Council of Nicea.

The Gregorian correction of the Julian calendar is close to mathematical accuracy. It makes allowance for the fact that a year is about 11 minutes less than 365¼ days long by not only inserting leap years such as 1952 every four years, but also by omitting "leap days" in the even century years divisible by 400, such as 1600, 2000, 2100, etc.

Practical as it is, the Gregorian calendar gained slow acceptance. The British Empire, including its American colony, did not adopt it until 1752. Young George Washington, who had turned 20 on February 11, 1752, had to wait until February 22, 1753 to attain his majority.

Calendar reforms are frequently proposed. The Gregorian calendar is so widely used, however, that even the Chinese have in recent decades recognized January 1 for business and governmental purposes.

A change of the Western World's Gregorian New Year's Day would involve considerable difficulty. Race horses would change their birthday, because they always add a year on January 1. Accountants and tax collectors would have to reshuffle their fiscal calculations; schools would lose the convenient Christmas-New Year vacation schedule, and greeting card makers would have to revise the plates saying 'Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

Celebrations probably would remain the same regardless of the day. New Year's Day is celebrated all over the world, no matter whether it is January 1, September 19 or the vernal equinox. All religions observe the start of a new year with prayer and services.

With the Classics

The fighting man shall from the sun
Take warmth, and life from the glowing earth;
Speed with the light-foot winds to run,
And with the trees to newer birth;
And find, when fighting shall be done,
Great rest, and fullness after dearth.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—A steady undertone was apparent today in coarse grain futures trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange. Most operations were connected with year-end evening.

Moderate commercial demand appeared in barley with modest orders from processors and some export trade. Small domestic trade featured rye. There was the odd processing and seaboard order in flax.

Inter-market spreading in rye involved selling here.

There were no reports of overnight export bookings of Canadian wheat.

Prices of class two and IWA wheat was up ¼ cent.

Winning Contract

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

The bidding shown above occurred with John Crowford, West, and Howard Schenken, East, in the Masters' Pair event this year. This was a deal of widely varied results. Some played the hand at five clubs doubled, some got as high as six doubled, one East was lucky enough to be double at five diamonds. In the bidding down here there was honor for both sides, although at the time it seemed as if South was the goat for having doubled five clubs, permitting East to escape into a contract he could make.

There is another side to the picture, however. If South does not double, his pass is in the nature of an urge to North to bid five spades a contract which South has every right to expect will not be successful. In fact, as you will observe from what happened when South passed the five-diamond bid, North would almost certainly have bid five spades over five clubs doubled. Thus, South was on the horns of a dilemma. If he failed to double, his partner would almost surely help East to escape; if he doubled, he'd give East a chance to do his own escaping. This leaves little doubt that South's proper course was to double and hope that East's escape suit, if he had one, could be taken care of by North. North had to lose two diamonds, a club and a heart to the five-spade contract, was down two, but the 500-point score was the best result either side could achieve against an opponent who made no mistakes.

Uncle Wiggily Story

By Howard Garis

All of Uncle Wiggily's friends were very happy for the jolly old rabbit gentleman when Buster's Christmas toy jet plane drove away Pop Goes, the weasel. Pop Goes was sneaking up to twiddle Uncle Wiggily's ears, Buster's plane, which the rabbit gentleman had started, was off on a high flight into the air. But the jet plane suddenly turned around, came swoshing straight at the weasel and made him turn a somerset in the snow.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Buster, when he saw what had happened to Pop Goes. "My jet plane is good for something, besides being a toy for me to play with, isn't it, daddy," the rabbit scout declared.

"It certainly is," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Now please go away from here and don't come back anymore to bother me!" the rabbit uncle called to the weasel.

"I'll go away now," snarled Pop Goes as he picked himself up out of the snow where he had turned a somerset, but I'll come back some day and twiddle your ears, Uncle Wiggily!"

"If you come back my jet plane will chase you all around the mulberry bush," promised Buster as he picked up his Christmas toy from where it had landed in a bank of snow. The jet plane didn't turn a somerset, but made a fine landing, and now it was ready to fly again.

Buster held his plane high in the air over his head.

"Watch me fly it myself now, fellows!" the rabbit scout called to his chums. "Here it goes!" But nothing happened. The jet plane still rested in Buster's paws. "What's the matter, daddy?" Buster asked. "Is my plane broken again?"

"No, Buster," Uncle Wiggily answered. "Your plane isn't broken."

"Then why doesn't it fly?" asked the rabbit scout.

"Because, just as at first, you forgot to wind up the doodle dingle bat, you didn't turn on the gazinkus gazunkus and you didn't switch on the uppus inkus ankus. Do these three things and your plane will fly again."

"Oh golly gosh!" exclaimed Buster. "I'm always forgetting!" Then he wound up the doodle dingle bat of his toy plane, he turned on the gazinkus gazunkas and he switched on the uppus inkus ankus. Then, with a swish and a swash and a swoochux the jet plane soared high into the air. Black smoke puffed out of the tail, almost like a real plane.

"Will your plane ever come back, Buster?" barked Jackie Bow Wow.

"Sure it will—won't it, daddy?" asked the rabbit scout.

"It will if you turn the rubber the right way," replied Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, golly gosh! I wonder if I remembered to set the rudder?" asked Buster of himself. "I hope I did! Watch my plane, fellows! If it doesn't come back we'll have to chase after it."

"We'll have to chase a long way to get your plane if it doesn't come back, Buster," barked Peetie, who was Jackie Bow Wow's brother.

"I think the plane will come back," said Uncle Wiggily. "I looked at the rudder just before Buster let go of his plane and the rudder was set right to bring the plane back here."

Buster and his chums watched the plane anxiously. It zimmed and zoomed higher and higher into the air. Then it made a turn and headed back toward Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump - bungalow. A few moments later the plane landed close to Buster in the snow of the yard back of the bungalow.

"Wow! That sure is a dandy plane!" bleated Billie Wagtail, the goat boy. "May I have a turn at flying it, Buster?"

"We can all take turns," Buster answered generously. As Uncle Wiggily hopped back to his bungalow, leaving Buster and his chums to play with the toy jet plane, Bunty the orphan rabbit came hopping toward Mr. Longears. Bunty was carrying her new Christmas doll. And the orphan rabbit was crying!

"Oh, dear! Boo hoo! Boo hoo!" I will tell you why Bunty was crying in tomorrow's story if the egg beater will spread some peanut butter on the table so the slice of bread can go skating.

B.C. Economy Shows Exceptional Strength

Basic industries in British Columbia operated at slightly lower levels in 1952 than in 1951, but other sectors of the provincial economy showed "exceptional strength," according to a review of business activity made public yesterday by Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Chetwynd.

Production levels are still high but the upward trend of recent years was reversed in mining, forestry and fisheries.

"Uncertain world market conditions for our primary products and severe industrial strikes were the chief adverse factors affecting the economy," the review stated.

Big volume of money passing through banks in the province was cited as an indication of the strength of general business conditions in B.C.

CHEQUE VOLUME HIGH

Total value of cheques cashed in 1952 is estimated at more than $11,000,000,000, or more than $1,000,000,000 greater than in 1951.

Consumer buying was described as "particularly heavy," partly as a result of the lifting of credit restrictions in the spring.

Total per capita retail sales are expected to reach a record high in 1952. Sales of consumer durables were "exceptionally brisk" with new records being established in the value of sales of motor vehicle dealers, furniture stores and appliance and radio dealers.

GASOLINE SALES UP

An increase in total sales of gasoline of more than 12,000,000 gallons is indicated for 1952 over 1951, according to the review.

Preliminary estimates show an increase in consumption of electricity of more than 300,000,000 kilowatt hours.

"Volume increases in these fields indicate heavier consumer spending on motor vehicles and electrical appliances as well as signifying increased emphasis on industrialization where the use of gasoline and electric power is particularly necessary," the review explained.

Per capita personal income was about 5 per cent higher this year than in 1951, but strikes in logging, sawmilling, fishing and construction industries tended to keep payrolls from reaching even higher levels.

Level of employment in B.C. was about the same as in 1951, but the number of unemployed increased in 1952.

ALCAN ON SCHEDULE

The review notes that work on the Aluminum Company of Canada's Kitimat project is well advanced, with work progressing on the tunnel and transmission line, the smelter site and the Terrace Kitimat branch rail line. It is expected the first aluminum ingots will be poured on schedule in 1954.

Employment in the shipbuilding and repairing industry was buoyed up by defense contracts. It is estimated that 25 per cent more persons were employed on this type of work in B.C. during the past year over 1951 figures.

Activity in oil refining showed a marked increase in 1952. Big refinery expansions are under way in preparation for the completion in October, 1953, of the Trans-Mountain oil pipeline, which will carry an initial flow of 120,000 barrels a day.

New industries opened in the past year include a kraft factory, paper bag factory and three communications and equipment companies. It is noted that various new companies have started production of aluminum castings.

EXPORTS BOOM

Value of exports through B.C. customs ports reached an all-time high in 1952 of $680,000,000, compared with $600,900,000 in 1951.

Value of imports during 1952 amounted to $755,000,000, compared with $333,200,000 in 1951.

B.C.'s forest production value dropped from $501,800,000 in 1951 to $500,000,000 in 1952.

Adverse conditions faced by the industry in 1952 according to the review, were high wages and high log costs, a major strike, serious fire conditions, a drop in lumber and pulp prices which was offset to an extent by an increase in newsprint prices, reduction in exports to the United Kingdom and the change in the Canadian-United States dollar exchange rate.

"The prospects for 1953," according to the review, "are that we will be able to do favorable volume trade with the United Kingdom but at much reduced prices. The U.S. market should be good as present legislation there guarantees a high level of residential house construction during 1953."

AGRICULTURE

B.C.'s agricultural production was up from $159,700,000 in 1951 to $165,000,000 in 1952.

Fisheries production was down from $83,800,000 in 1951 to $75,000,000 in the past year.

Mining production dropped off from $175,000,000 in 1951 to $164,000,000 in 1952.

Value of manufacturing production in B.C. in 1952 is estimated at $1,375,000,000 compared with an estimate of $1,300,000,000 for 1951.

Value of construction permits issued during 1952 is estimated at $156,000,000 compared with $581,548,000 in 1951. Value of building permits issued is estimated at $92,000,000 for 1952 against $87,343,000 for 1951.

Estimated value of retail trade is $1,233,000,000 for 1952, compared with $1,137,867,000 for 1951.

Two Fined $50 for Shoplifting

David Thomas and Douglas H. Going, both of no fixed address, were each fined $50, or in default 15 days, in city police court yesterday on individual charges involving shoplifting in the Hudson's Bay Co. store.

Thomas was charged with stealing goods valued at more than $25 (a mantel radio), while Going's offense involved goods valued at less than $25 (a carving set, shaving set and other articles).

The two men were apprehended about 10 days ago within seconds of an attempt to sell the stolen goods to Harry Mills, head HBC store detective, who had followed the two accused to a nearby parking lot.

Pleading guilty to a charge of violating a restricted driver's license, Charles E. Hemeon, 788 Hillside, was fined $35. He was fined an additional $2.50 after pleading guilty to a parking infraction.

Arnold Rene Nuyls, Colwood, was fined $15 after pleading guilty to a careless driving charge. Early December 14 a car he was driving was involved in an accident on Quadra Street. Damage to his car was estimated at $250.

John William Widdon of Sidney was also fined $35 after pleading guilty to a careless driving charge. On November 17 the car he was driving was in collision with another vehicle at the Johnson-Quadra intersection. His license will be suspended and a report of the case will be sent to the superintendent of motor vehicles.

On the morning of December 16, Richard Arthur Lewall, 3321 Cedar Hill Road, failed to yield his right of way to two children in a "stop when occupied" zone on Government near John Street. In court yesterday he pleaded guilty to the offense and was fined $10.

Navy Plans Converting Of Crescent

The Royal Canadian Navy yesterday announced its destroyer HMCS Crescent is to be converted into an anti-submarine escort at HMC Dockyard at a cost of approximately $5,000,000.

The destroyer, now based at Halifax, will leave there January 9, and is expected to reach Esquimalt early the next month.

It is expected Crescent's conversion will be similar to that now nearing completion in the destroyer Algonquin, which has taken Yarrows Ltd. almost two years.

Work in the Crescent will be handled almost entirely by the navy.

The gas vacuum internal combustion engine was operated successfully by Samuel Brown in London, England, in 1823.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

On this New Year's morning—if any of you have the time or the inclination to read these words—I should very much like to continue my observations on the problem presented to the Christian by the ethical challenge of war. This I do by reason of many telephone calls and some [illegible] who either felt that I had said too much or not enough in last Sunday's column.

Most of the criticism came from the lips and the pens of those who could call themselves "pacifists," and who felt that my position was in contradiction to the New Testament—particularly to Christ's teachings in the "Sermon on the Mount." One pacifist was exceedingly truculent. His letter was full of fire and indignation. In one lively sentence, he accused me of "hypocrisy," "shallow-thinking," "selling Christ short," "capitalist-bourgeoisie-cant" and "the unkindest blow of all—"a muddled abuse of words."

Now I deeply respect those who for conscience's sake adopt this attitude towards the use of force as a consistent principle of conduct in their lives, but I would beg them not to use in debate that aggressiveness and hostility of mind and heart which they so volubly repudiate as a pattern of conduct between nations on the field of battle.

Let me say again that the Christian conscience condemns war as a method of resolving disputes between nations. With Erasmus, the Christian proclaims that it is conceived in folly, it is waged with impiety and it ends in misery.

But there are occasions when the refusal to wage war is also wickedness and folly. The last occasion came upon us in 1939. Were we wrong in taking up arms against Adolf Hitler and his henchmen?

* * *

A month after the British and the American forces entered Berlin, the Fraternal Council of the Confessing Church in Germany held a meeting. According to one observer, they were a gaunt and haggard brotherhood with shrunken frames and sunken cheeks, whose eyes were doubly haunted by the memory of brethren murdered by the Gestapo and the vision of a cross which would not let them go.

They—these German Christians—knew what war meant to them and their nation. They also knew what it was to live in a nightmare called the National Socialist State. They acknowledged their sins and their shortcomings and they said: "But in the midst of the errors of the Church and the nation, God gave power to some men and women of all confessions, classes and parties to oppose injustices and tyranny, to suffer and die. Now for the first time members of the Confessing Church are able to assume positions of leadership in the whole Church. Our captivity is over."

But who had set these German Christians free? Only their enemies! Only those British, Commonwealth and American troops who had stormed the bastions of Hitler's "Fortress Europa" to fling open the doors of the concentration camp, to smother the fires of the Belsen incinerators, to rout the terror of the Gestapo and the storm trooper, and to exorcize the evil phantom of a master race bent upon world conquest.

My pacifist friends tell me that war accomplishes nothing. They are quite wrong. War is the answer to tyranny and oppression from without as even rebellion must be from within when men find their "Magna Carta's" destroyed, their "Bill of Rights" suborned and their lives forfeit to the dictator and his terror.

* * *

There is incessant war between good and evil. St. Paul writes: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

If there is to be peace on earth, this spiritual warfare must be won first of all. Material or physical victory is never permanent nor sufficient. Bad ideas cannot be destroyed by the best of atom bombs.

This is where the Christian Church can serve this generation best. It can and it must defeat the false teachings of class warfare, of violence, tyranny, cruelty and fraud by setting up in their place the dynamics of justice, truth, love, pity and mercy.

Can we not make this our per-

U.K. Employees Denied Raise

LONDON (Reuters).—British government employees have been refused a raise which would have cost the state £15,000,000 a year. Government negotiators rejected the claim at a meeting with union leaders acting for 600,000 civil servants. The civil servants asked for a raise related to increases won by industrial workers, whose wages on an official index have gone up by seven points in a year.

Boxing Highlight of 1952

This is "Marciano Special" that sent old Jersey Joe Walcott (left) reeling to canvas for count during 13th round of their scheduled 15-round title bout in Philadelphia. This blow gave coveted heavyweight tiara to Rocky Marciano, who became first undefeated boxer in history to win bauble.

Revamped Victoria United Squad To Oppose North Shore Saturday

Victoria United will have a revised line-up when it meets North Shore United in a Coast League match at Royal Athletic Park Saturday at 2.15 p.m.

Herman Henry and Ken Williams, two former members of Duncan Native Sons, will be making their debut with Victoria, which has not seen league action for six weeks. Henry and Williams are replacements for Jack Robbins, who has retired from the game, and Alex Stewart, who has transferred back to Esquimalt of the Victoria and District Football Association.

Also with United for the first time this season is Einar Flatlef, who saw brief action with the club last year before suffering a serious injury.

Flatlen is listed as a substitue along with Murray Speller and Tim Walker.

VETERAN TEAM

Currently the hottest team in the circuit, Shores will present a veteran line-up which will include both Trev Harvey and Jim Spencer. Harvey pivots George Beckett and Malcolm McManus on the half line, while Spencer will be at inside left on an attacking line with Fred Whittaker at centre, Gordon Ion and Jim Greig on the right side and Bruce Ashdown on left wing.

Harry Anderson and Ian Douglas form the fullback combination in front of goalie Bob Bissett. Tom Cooper, John Newbold and Bill Walters are listed as spares.

The game is an important one for both clubs as they swing into the stretch drive of the 15-game schedule. The clubs are currently tied for second place with 12 points each, two less than New Westminster Royals. United has six games left while Royals and Shores each have five to play.

Two Games Set In Soccer Loop

Two games are scheduled for local soccer fans in the Victoria and District Football Association over the week end.

Esquimalt and Civil Service will meet in a regular league fixture on Saturday at Lower Beacon Hill at 2.30 p.m.

On Sunday, the winless Canadian Scottish tangles with Victoria West at Heywood Avenue at 2.15 p.m. A victory for Wests will put them in a first-place tie with Adanacs, whom they tied last Sunday.

Kennedy Gains Tie for Fourth With Richard

Ted Kennedy of Toronto picked up a pair of assists in the Maple Leafs' 3-3 draw with New York last night to move into a tie with Montreal's Maurice Richard for fourth place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Detroit's Gordie Howe, Wally Hergesheimer of New York and Ted Lindsay of Detroit, the big three in the league, all were held off the score sheet last night.

Howe still is well out in front with 21 goals and 20 assists for 41 points and a five-point lead over Hergesheimer.

Detroit Sends Young Goalie To Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Netminder Davie Gatherum is flying from Sahwinigan Falls, Que., to join Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

Coach Bud Polle said Wednesday night that Gatherum, property of Detroit Red Wings, will be on hand for Thursday night's game with Calgary.

The Flyers had been desperate for a goalie since regular Glen Hall was called up by the parent Detroit club to replace injured Terry Sawchuk.

Saskatoon Quakers loaned Flyers Gump Worsley for their Tuesday night game with New Westminster Royals. But he was loaned for one game only and now is back in Saskatoon.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

I was sort of sorry last night when I suddenly realized that 1952 would be history in a few hours. From day to day it was not a spectacular year, hardly any different from the eight previous years I've been in this office but in retrospect it was a good year. There was much in it to look back on and enjoy again in the reliving. . . .

It was a great baseball year and it was great watching the Tyees from spring training to pennant clinching . . . the fun of training camp, where Cec Garriott strove to find a regular from the hodge-podge of talent he brought with him from Los Angeles . . . Garrjott himself, uncommunicative, uncompromising, suspicious of the printed word and brooking not the slightest interference with his handling of the club, driving his team to the top on speed and hustle and personally showing the way, the best manager in the postwar history of the WIL . . . the tremendous pitching of Cal McIrvin, Ben Lorino and Jehosie Heard, that colorful imp who was good and knew it . . . the amazing short-stopping of Jim Clark and much, much more. All of it made possible by the Booster Club and the success, partial at least, of the "save baseball" fund drive. . . .

Victoria coming into its own on the soccer pitches with United winning the Coast Soccer League championship. . . . George Eade putting up the money for what is for him a consuming hobby. . . . Wallace Milligan, perhaps not too popular with some fans and players but the club's mainspring . . . sitting through match after match thinking that the honeymoon would soon end but it's still going on . . . speed and hustle again paying off. . . .

Watching the Shamrocks, who had the condition of their league and deservedly topped the standings for the second straight year . . . always the thought that the club lacked something but not knowing what . . . certain, but hoping it wasn't so, that the Rocks were not built for play-off lacrosse and that the coveted Mann Cup was still somewhere in the future . . . the disappointment when the thought was proven correct . . . wondering what lacrosse will bring this year and just a bit worried that the peak is past. . . .

Sweating out the season with the Cougars . . . relations with the management somewhat strained . . . everything forgotten one Sunday in Seattle, when the Cougars scored four goals in six never-to-be-forgotten minutes in the last half of the last period of the season's last scheduled game to transform a mediocre season into a success . . . their valiant try in the playdowns which just missed . . . the feeling of certainty that Roger Leger would not be back . . . regret at the thought but also an understanding of the problems which faced the management . . . the disbelief which followed the announcement of appointment of Eddie Dorohoy as his successor . . . and now, sweating out another season with the Cougars. . . .

Only partially in the line of duty, the memorable fishing trips of the year . . . those stolen hours and days which provided the break that was needed . . . the Up-Island steelheading expeditions with Stan Williams, the ideal fishing partner . . . he never catches fish but is always good for the unexpected, which is always better in the re-telling . . . four great days with Andy Anderson . . . the big thrill of a 42½-pound Tyee in the Alberni Canal . . . exceptional coho fishing at Qualicum Beach, which, unexpectedly, was to included Ralph Baker, Arnie Ferguson, Duff McCaghey, Sid Watson and Jim Mason . . . Dunc Turner's big failure as a host . . . the loss of my pyjamas, still missing . . . Cliff Heglin making good on his promise to eat it raw if it didn't weigh 20 pounds . . . the rather epic trip in the Percy J. to Cowichan Bay for the coho derby which was to involve publisher Seth Halton and biologist Charlie Guiget and almost a dozen more . . . and, of course, the gratifying experience of unexpectedly becoming a boat owner. . . .

And, still on a personal plane, breaking 100 three times in four rounds at Colwood with an honest stroke count . . . a "sparkling" 45 on one back nine . . . the sudden and gratifying loss of handicap strokes from my rather-chagrined opponent. . . .

These are the highlights which come to a mind admittedly thinking of other things. There were bad moments, too, but when you are searching for the good, the bad is not too bad. As I said at the start, for me 1952 was a good year. May 1953 bring to all of you the satisfaction I was to find in 1952. Happy New Year.

Tyees, United Top Great Sports Year With League Titles

Success of Victoria Tyees and Victoria United in 1952 was tempered by the disappointing showing of Victoria Cougars and the collapse of Victoria Shamrocks.

Tyees' runaway race to the Western International League baseball pennant after surviving a "save baseball" drive to retain the franchise was probably the local sports highlight of the year.

It was Victoria's first pennant since entering the WIL in 1946 and second counting the triumph of the Foundation club in the old Pacific Coast League in 1920.

Individual laurels also came to Victoria in baseball with manager Cec Garriott, Ben Lorino and Jim Clark being selected on the league all-star team. Lorino was the top hurler and Granny Gladstone took all the slugging honors.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Prospects for a second straight title appear bright, with most of the championship club slated to return to compete in the next season in the enlarged loop, which now includes Edmonton and Calgary.

Disappointment shaded United's feat of bringing Victoria its first Coast Soccer League title. By far the best team in the circuit at the end of the season, United withdrew from Dominion Cup play after a wrangle over selection of players to oppose the touring Tottenham Hotspurs.

New Westminster Royals went to the final before bowing to Montreal Siekos in Dominion Cup play and Tottenham gave a magnificent exhibition in trouncing the Vancouver Island All-Stars, 7-0.

United is again making a strong bid for the laurels although a six-week layoff at the end of the year has done them no good.

Cougars experienced a rather disappointing season after their championship performance of the 1951 Pacific Coast Hockey League season. They made partial atonement by scoring five goals in six minutes of the final game at Seattle to come from behind and squeek into the playoffs. Then they eliminated the league-winning New Westminster Royals before bowing to Saskatoon Quakers in the final.

Cougars also provided the biggest surprise with the appointment of Eddie Dorohoy as coach for the 1952-53 season. Dorohoy's charges made an impressive beginning, slumped in November and then came back on a six-game winning streak to again be rated as a contender for a play-off berth.

SHAMROCKS COLLAPSE

The biggest disappointment was the collapse of the Shamrocks, who breezed to their second straight Inter-City Lacrosse League title in impressive fashion. Although they possessed the league's two top scorers in Archie Browning and Whitey Severson, Shamrocks were no match for North Shore Indians in the play-off semi-final and were whipped in four games.

Track and field and swimming provided Victoria with its top individual honors. Bruce Humber was named coach of Canada's Olympic track and field team and Archie McKinnon was Canada's swimming coach at the Olympics. Bill Parnell, Bob Hutchison and Dawn Josephs were members of the Dominion's track and field team and Pete Salmon again competed in Olympic swimming events.

Victoria Crimson Tide almost brought the city its third major title, losing to UBC Thunderbirds in a playoff for the McKechnie Cup rugby trophy.

Canadian football, amateur baseball and softball experienced successful seasons but basketball is still struggling to regain popularity although Victoria Individuals lost out by only a single point in the Island final. This spring and Victoria Kins are providing the best basketball in six years.

Cutlers failed to complete their new rink but prospects of the sport becoming a major one in 1953 are bright with completion of the rink scheduled for the middle of January.

Red Wings Blanked By Canadiens, 2-0; Rangers Tie Leafs

HOW THEY STAND

Detroit	35	16	8	11	111	66	43
Montreal	34	14	19	10	83	71	38

Boston	34	11	16	7	74	89	29
New York	34	5	18	11	56	102	21

Next games tonight: Canadiens at Chicago, Toronto at Boston.

Montreal Canadiens banged out a 2-0 victory over the league-leading Detroit Red Wings Wednesday night to end the Wings' 15-game unbeaten string in the National Hockey League.

The victory also lifted the Habitants into second place, a point ahead of idle Chicago Black Hawks and five behind Detroit.

In the night's other game Jack Stoddard scored late in the third period to give the tail-end New York Rangers a 3-3 tie with fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

[illegible] one for rookie goalie Glen Hall, formerly of Edmonton Flyers, who was called up while regular netminder Terry Sawchuk recovers from an injury.

A New Years Eve crowd of 13,289 saw Ken Mosdell of Canadiens score in the second period moments after Detroit missed on what looked like a sure shot goal. Then as Detroit battled to tie the score in the closing seconds, Paul Meger tallied.

HABS HOLD EDGE

Montreal thus continued to be the only club with an edge this season over the league-leading Wings, who have beaten the Canadiens only once.

Mosdell's goal came at 15.01 of the second period. He took a pass across the ice from Bert Olmstead, skated up to the side of the net and fired six feet past Hall.

Meger's goal came at 19.30 of the final period after he took a pass from John McCormack, broke past a Wing defenceman and with clear sailing, skated almost to the net before he shoved the puck past Hall.

Hall stopped 20 other shots while Canadien goalie Gerry McNeil halted 28 shots.

Stoddard's tying goal at New York was set up by defenceman Alan Stanley and centre Gordie Haworth. The Leafs had taken a 3-2 lead shortly before the halfway mark of the final period on Sid Smith's 100th goal of his big league career.

BRILLIANT GOAL

The teams battled on even terms through a rather dull and scoreless first period. Shortly after the middle stanza opened, rangy Nick Mickoski shot the Rangers ahead 1-0 with a brilliant goal.

Mickoski stole the puck at the blue line from Toronto defenceman Jim Thomson, steamed in unmolested and blasted the puck into the left hand corner of the net. The goal ended Toronto goalie Harry Lumley's consecutive scoreless streak at 149 minutes and 25 seconds.

The Leafs tied the score within four minutes. Ron Stewart backhanded home the tying marker after Ted Kennedy and Smith set him up. The Leafs moved ahead 2-1 during the final eight minutes of play on a goal by Phil Maloney, recently brought up from Pittsburgh.

New York tied the score early in the third period while Toronto was shorthanded. Steve Kraftcheck fired a screened shot from the blue line. Smith and Stoddard then followed.

Standout Performances Studded High School Athletics in 1952

BY IAN GLENDAY

"Ring out the old year, bring in the new."

High school officials, players and students alike, mindful of the old saying, wait patiently for the commencement of this year's activities wait with the knowledge that 1952 is gone but some of the outstanding moments recorded during competition will live on for years to come.

There were many top-notch performances rung up during the year, some of which will no doubt be told over and over again to bored grandchildren.

It is hard to pick out the top performance of the year but let's flip back the sports pages and take the year in review.

Probably the greatest show from both a competitor and fan point of view was the second annual Vancouver Island High School basketball tournament at Victoria High gym. Basketball had been struggling in the city to regain its prewar stature but the two-day tourney drew packed houses.

STIRRING FINAL

Victoria High Totems and the defending champion Alberni High School team swept to the final with ease in the first night of play and set the stage for one of the most stirring games seen at the Fernwood gym in many years.

Broadcast for the first time over CJVI, the teams battled down to the wire with Dave Williamson coolly sinking two free shots in the final seconds of the game to give the up-Islanders a 47-44 decision and the Colonist Cup for the second straight year.

Gordie Jones of Esquimalt and Alan Snowsell of Mount View were selected to the first all-star team while Alberni grabbed the other three berths.

Then Mount View, the Totems and Alberni traveled to the B.C. High school championship tournament, giving a good account of themselves before bowing out of play.

Totems and Alberni were defeated in the semi-finals by Mission and Duke of Connaught, the eventual winners, respectively.

CONSOLATION AWARD

Mount View, knocked out in an early round of the three-day affair, received some consolation when it was named the most sportsmanlike team in the province. Ron Gray of Alberni was selected on the first all-star team and Jim Jahraus of Totems was named second-string centre.

Other basketball highlights included Totems' victory in the Inter-Scholastic League, winding up the schedule with a 3-0 record.

Mount View and Victoria High shared the senior boys' hoopla crown when the Totems trimmed the Suburbanites in the final game of the schedule.

Victoria High and Esquimalt were named co-holders of the junior boys' title. Men's rules were introduced in senior girls' play, for the first time in high school history, and VHS Golds swept through the season undefeated with six straight victories.

Although there were a lot of sore muscles the next day and the liniment sales in the city increased at an alarming rate, the Oldtimers still had enough savvy to defeat Totems in the annual game. George Andrews and Hank Goldsmith paced the winners with 12 and 10 points respectively while two of Canada's greatest names in basketball, Chuck and Art Chapman, contributed six points apiece.

TWO NEW HOLDERS

Soccer, which alternates with rugby each year, again had a big season with Mount View and Victoria High winning the Colonist Cup in the spring and fall, respectively.

Mount View, which was prominent in high school activity all through the year, ended Oak Bay's domination of the sport by edging the Bays, 2-1, on an overtime goal by Gary Crowe in the final game of the spring series.

Mount View hosted John Oliver in the B.C. final but dropped a 4-2 decision to the powerful visitors.

Then it was Victoria High's turn to regain the trophy, defeating the same Mount View squad, which was minus the high-scoring Crowe, in straight games in the fall series.

Then the Fernwood crew packed their bags for Vancouver to meet the Mainland winners, King Edward High, one of the classiest aggregations ever produced in the port city.

Although displaying fight until the final whistle, the locals were outclassed and dropped a decisive 8-0 decision to King Ed, with a pair of Coast Soccer League stars, Gordie Ion and Bruce Ashdown, pacing the winners.

Oak Bay took a pair of junior soccer titles, winning the latter championship in the fall with a perfect record in five games.

DOMINATES TRACK

Victoria High showed its superiority in the track department by rolling to its second straight championship in both the inter-high and B.C. high school track meets.

Victoria High School's gold-dust twins, Ted Whan and Chris Boyd, walked off with all the individual honors. Whan won his second straight aggregate trophy in senior boys' events in both meets while Miss Boyd took her second straight championship in the senior girls' division of the local meet and her initial award in the B.C. meet.

Oak Bay and Mount View shared the junior boys' softball title while again it was Mount View that again headed the field in the senior softball league race with four straight victories.

RETAINS SWIM CUP

Oak Bay took the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy in the annual inter-high school swimming meet for the second straight year by edging Victoria High by five points.

The city institution's powerful cross-country team left a trail of victories in its wake and ended Royal Roads' domination of the Vancouver Island championship after eight straight years.

Queen Margaret School of Duncan and Oak Bay shared the Bridgman Cup grass hockey championship, battling to a 1-1 draw in the final.

GREAT LOSS

Marring an otherwise tragic-free year was the death of popular Victoria High School former physical education instructor, W. A. (Bill) Roper, on January 17. Roper had retired from teaching the year before and his death came as a shock to faculty members and students, who came to regard him as both a friend and a counsellor.

A trophy was donated by his son and Dick Wood, a Grade 12 student at Victoria High received the award in June for sportsmanship and athletic ability.

Although the year 1952 was a smashing success, high school officials are confident that the new year will bestow even greater honors on players and the calibre of play will improve.

Aussies Upset In Test Match

MELBOURNE (AP) — South Africa's cricket team Tuesday scored its first test victory in 42 years over Australia, winning the second test match by 82 runs.

Australia won the first test at Brisbane.

Brilliant fielding and catching by the youthful South Africans were the outstanding features of the game.

Russell Endean, a successful batsman on this trip, made 162 for South Africa in its second innings.

The scores were: South Africa 227 and 388. Australia 213 and 290.

Inducements to Sedgman To Stay in Amateur Ranks

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Some time Friday, Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor, king pins of Australia's triumphant Davis Cup team, are expected to make the formal announcement that they are turning professional.

The announcement that the Australian stars are accepting Jack Kramer's $100,000 offer for a professional tour of the United States is expected at the Davis Cup dinner tonight. It has been about the worst-kept "secret" in tennis history.

It was learned today that a group of wealthy Australians again are offering Sedgman financial inducements to remain an amateur. That effort isn't expected to work. Frank received a $12,000 wedding gift last year, with the understanding that he'd stick around to defend the cup once more. But he can hardly get married again.

Kramer, in Los Angeles anxiously awaiting a trans-oceanic phone call, has confirmed his offer of a guarantee of $75,000 to Sedgman and $25,000 to Mr. Gregor. If everything goes according to schedule, the Australians will fly out of Sydney Saturday and begin play against Kramer and Pancho Segura in Los Angeles January 6.

With those two gone, Vic Seixas, America's Davis Cup ace, figures the United States will have a very good chance to regain the cup next year.

"They won't find players to replace Frank and Ken in one year or even two," said Vic. "They'll be much weaker and we'll be much stronger as by that time Trabert will have come out of the navy and had nearly six months of hard competition."

Reminded that Australia's two flashy juniors, Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, are ready to move in, Seixas continued:

"They're still very young to assume Davis Cup responsibility. It's different from anything else. For that matter, we have a very fine young player coming up in Bob Perry of California."

Kaleta Has Big Point Lead But Rivals Well Bunched

Alex Kaleta, veteran Saskatoon centre, has established a good lead in the battle for the individual scoring championship of the Western Hockey League and will be tough to overhaul unless he misses action through injury.

The former NHL player is nine points ahead of Tacoma's Gordie Kerr, and defending champion George Agar of Calgary, the active players closest to the top. Teammate George Senick is closest to Kaleta, but is out with a broken thumb and may join New York Rangers when he is ready to play.

Behind Kaleta, the field is bunched with no less than 23 players having between 31 and 39 points. Agar has been coming steadily of late and is threatening to make a fight of it. He has the advantage of having two extra games left.

Edmonton's Earl Reibel, last season's rookie award winner in the AHL, is now close up with 37 points.

BEST RECORD

There are 39 players with 25 or more points and of these, 14 have averaged a point a game or better. The best record of all, however, is held by Vic Stasiuk, big, hard-shooting Edmonton winger who played for Detroit Red Wings last season. Stasiuk has 34 points in the 19 games he has played for the Flyers, almost two points a game, and 18 of his points are goals. That pace would break all hockey scoring records had he been with the Flyers from the start of the season.

Coach Ed Dorohoy, Colin Kilburn and Jim Fairburn of the Victoria Cougars have all managed to get a point a game or more on the average. Other players with a point-a-game average are: Kaleta, Senick and Jackie McLeod of Saskatoon; Kerr, Wingy Johnston and Doug Adam of Tacoma; Agar and Sid Finney of Calgary, and Reibel.

Despirito's Final Total 390 Winners

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Little Tony DeSpirito, who rode to the cheers of thousands as he broke the world's riding record Tuesday, was just another jockey at Tropical Park yesterday.

In eight races, his only winner was a two-year-old filly with the appropriate name of Satisfied, which won the first race by six lengths.

DeSpirito must have been satisfied, too, for this was his 390th winner of 1952. Tuesday, with four winners in seven races, he had erased Walter Miller's record of 388 which had stood for 46 years against the attacks of all the world's great riders.

The swarthy, dark-eyed youngster rode 1,482 mounts in his first glorious year as a jockey.

He was first with 390, second with 217, third with 212 and out of the money with just 633. His mounts won more than $800,000 in purses.

The record he rubbed out Tuesday was tied in 1950 by Joe Culmone and Willie Shoemaker.

Hunch Bettors Did Not Stagger

Hunch bettors did all right at Tropical Park over the holiday season by betting just one horse in two races. The horse is appropriately named Stagger Home.

Stagger Home ran at the Florida track on Christmas Day, won his race at long odds and returned punters who played their hunches a handsome sum.

Yesterday New Year's Eve, Stagger Home was entered in the fifth race at Tropical and again staggered home in front. But this time a few more punters had hunches and the return was only $8.90 for each winning $2 ticket.

Ken Watson's Curling

WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR BACKSWING?

The point on the ice from which your backswing commences is not always the same. Nor do I use the term "point" loosely. Although a curling stone is 10 to 11 inches wide, the line on which it must be aimed is an imaginary line from the skip's broom (at which you are aiming), through the centre of the stone and extending to the top of the arc of the backswing. Therefore if your stone does not exactly split that imaginary line at the start of your backswing, the odds are that your swing will be off-line and you will be wide or narrow of the target.

Only when the skip holds his broom on the centre line does your stone split the centre line in front of the hack at the commencement of your swing. When the broom you are aiming at is to your left, off centre, then your stone must be adjusted to the left accordingly, and the further off centre the broom, the further to the left you start your rock. Mind you, your stone will always have some portion of it on the centre line because the angle deviation is very slight.

If you can, through practice, develop a true, unhurried and rhythmical swing without any pushes or last-second twists of the handle, this one point, if observed carefully, will spare you many moments of mental agony. You will gain the confidence necessary to play wicks and rolls for position, instead of merely being satisfied to hit any part of a stone you are wanting to remove.

Not until after I had been curling for 20 years did I learn that this had been the reason why I was consistently a little narrow on in-turns and tended to be wide on out-turns. Unconsciously, too, I preferred an out-turn draw to an in-turn, due to this little idiosyncracy. To my mind, this one hint is so important it is worth sleeping on tonight, and every night from now to the end of your curling days.

Next . . . What's Wrong With Your Backswing? (Part 3)

(This is the third in a series of instructive articles on curling by Ken Watson, Canada's leading exponent of the sport. Today's article is the second entitled "What's Wrong With Your Backswing?" Part three of the same subject will be carried in this paper on Saturday.)

Few Highlights in Canadian Sport in 1952

TORONTO (CP) — Maybe Canada's once-proud amateur sportsmen should forget about 1952. It was the most miserable year from a national and international standpoint that most can recall.

The one big shining light in the play-for-fun family was George Genereux, a 17-year-old crew-cut trapshooter from Saskatoon, who won Canada's only gold medal in the summer Olympic Games at Helsinki. He went over as another guy called Joe and returned as the singularly-praised hero of the [illegible] athletes and 28 officials.

On the professional level, big-time football kept the sports scene alive with probably its best season. Newspaper ink flowed freely as both the Western and Eastern leagues reached their peak in crowd appeal and down-to-the-wire finishes, climaxed by the greatest spectacle on the calendar—the Grey Cup final.

GREY CUP RECORD

A crowd of 27,395, a record for a Grey Cup final, saw Toronto Argonauts defeat Edmonton Eskimos 21-11 and win their 10th straight Canadian championship. The game was televised for the first time in history and an estimated 700,000 persons saw the game within the 90-mile range of the Toronto sation. Gate receipts, not yet officially announced, were believed to be about $125,000, highest in history.

In the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens were humiliated in the Stanley Cup by the high-stepping Detroit Red Wings. The Wings disposed of Toronto four straight in the semi-finals and duplicated the performance against Canadiens in the final—the first time in history a club has won the trophy in eight straight.

Montreal Royals placed first and Toronto Leafs were fourth in the triple A International Baseball League but both were eliminated in the playoffs. The Leafs drew an all-time record crowd of 469,325 for the season in their home park.

A few individual amateur performers stood out but almost generally amateur sport was in a far from healthy state.

FAILED TO ATTRACT

Lacrosse, tennis, track and field and swimming suffered severely at the gate. The three-day Olympic swimming trials at Toronto attracted 550 persons or fewer. Amateur hockey crowds were down in many areas with only the seven-team Quebec Major League reporting a marked increase. League games there drew more than 1,000,000 persons, the largest in history. Nearly all six teams in the Maritime major circuit lost money in the 90-game schedule.

Squabbles and bickerings hit some amateur sports governing bodies and heavy broadsides were fired at the Canadian Olympic Association. There was controversy over selection of the summer team and hints of bungling, incompetent handling and favoritism were tossed around.

Canada's hockey team, Edmonton Mercurys, won the winter Olympic championship at Oslo, Norway, but Canadian skiers held their record of not winning a point for Canada since the games started 28 years ago.

Canadian athletes were also [illegible] fans at Helsinki and the resultant blow-off by Canadians may end in a shake-up of the COA personnel at its annual meeting scheduled for January. President Sidney Dawes of Montreal has intimated he will resign.

POOR TURN-OUTS

A crowd of only 1,450 saw Peterborough Timbermen win their fourth and final game over Vancouver Pilseners to take the Canadian senior lacrosse best-of-seven title series. Again at Toronto, the last game of the Mc[illegible] only 3,700 fans as Guelph Biltmores whipped Regina Pats.

Fort Frances Canadians defeated Stratford Indians four games to one to win the Allen Cup and Quebec Aces led by Jean Marc Belveau defeated Saint John Beavers four games to one in their best-of-seven Alexander Trophy series for the Canadian major hockey championship.

Montreal Steleos won the Canadian soccer championship over New Westminster Royals at Winnipeg. Steleos won the final game of a best-of-three series 2-0 before a crowd of only 1,400.

In tennis, Tony Vincent and Lucille Davidson, both Americans, won the Canadian senior men's and women's titles. Marriette Laframboise of Montreal and Stephen Gottlieb of New York won the junior singles crowns.

Billy Walsh of Winnipeg won the Canadian curling championship and Tillsonburg Livingstons whipped Winnipeg Varsity Grads three games to one in their best-of-five series for the Canadian basketball title. Livvies defeated the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in the Olympic trials and an all-star team made up of Tillsonburg Mustangs, Grads and Montreal players competed for Canada in the summer [illegible] out in the first round.

Marlene Stewart, the Ontario youngster from the Lookout Point Golf Club near Welland, Ont., retained her Canadian women's closed championship. Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., won the Canadian Open and Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon the Canadian Professional Golf Association titles.

Toronto's Cliff Lumsden won the 10-mile world professional swimming championship and 16-year-old Shirley Campbell of Fergus, Ont., the women's mile at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Canada's racing classic, the $15,000-added Queen's Plate, was won in the mud and rain at Toronto's Woodbine Park by Epigram, owned by the Three V's stable of Toronto.

Golf— Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

When you grip the club make sure that your grip is not so tight that you lose the feel of the clubhead. There should be a definite sensation of weight on the end of the shaft as you swing the club. If your grip is light, but firm enough, to allow this feeling of clubhead weight you will not have a tendency to hack at the ball stiffly and awkwardly. You'll permit the head of the club to do the work of whipping crisply into the ball. Many times the player is so conscious of the need of getting his hands into the shot that he holds the club in a death clutch and tightens the muscles in his forearms to the extent that he is practically numb to the fact that there is hitting weight located at the bottom end of the shaft, which is there to do the job. Remind yourself that when you take those neat and graceful practice shots without a ball you are relaxed and just swinging. Do the same when you are hitting the golf ball. The ball will go far enough if you pay more attention to swinging into it squarely rather than with brute force.

Brentwood Basketball

Three games are scheduled for the Saanich and Suburban Basketball League at Brentwood High tomorrow night.

The home team will tackle Shawnigan Lake in the Siddy boys' contest, followed by a midget girls' game between the same two centres.

Brentwood and Mount Tolmie will meet in a Senior "C" men's fixture in the feature contest of the three-game card.

Long-Service Men Honored

At a dinner held at Chez Marcel Inn, December 17, eight employees of Weston Bakeries Limited were honored by the presentation of emblems of membership in a newly-formed Quarter Century Club. Each member received a scroll certificate, a diamond-studded lapel pin and an Elgin wrist watch. Those still on the active list will receive three weeks' vacation starting 1953. Mr. C. R. Law, general manager, made the presentations.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

PLAN FOR THE SMALL TRAVELER

Traveling with baby these holidays? You can make it easier for yourself and baby too if you plan to keep him as close to schedule as possible. Even the [illegible] if you try to keep him happy he will respond with good behavior. It calls for planning so that you have all his essential items at your fingertips.

In addition to his food diapers and other clothes changes pack the over-the-shoulder bag with a plastic sheet to protect your friends' furniture such as a bed or chair where you will change baby. Then at diaper switches your youngster can be given the same unhurried skin care routine as at home. Take along his cream in its unbreakable plastic bottle which is no hazard to carry and safe when visiting.

For the longer visit when you will bathe baby there should be no hurry or excitement during this ritual. It is important to give baby's skin its usual beauty care. A soothing application of a baby cream after each bath and diaper change protects the infant's skin keeps him happier. During cold, chap-producing weather a creamy white emulsion helps ward off redness, chafes and prickles that are apt to make baby fussy.

There's no need to limit your visit if you make baby a welcome guest. He will be [illegible] however if [illegible] household routine is disturbed. Make your feedings, bathing and other rituals as unobstrusive and casual as you would at home. Everyone probably will want to get into the act but if baby isn't used to an audience and he refuses to eat just explain tactfully and family and friends will understand. Perhaps as you are finishing him up you might call out and let them have a look but this should be up to you to decide. Most people today understand that a young mother will have difficulty resuming a planned schedule if it is upset and generally they like to prevent the extra work this will cause her.

The afternoon Branch of St. Saviour's WA will meet at the home of the president, Mrs. B. Jackson, 811 Russell Street, on January 5 at 2.30 p.m.

Today's Favorite Recipe

This unusual pudding is dark like a Christmas pudding, and is delicious served with a caramel or lemon sauce. It is sent in by Mrs. Elwood Gropp, 2615 Cedar Hill Road.

PERSIMMON PUDDING

One cup persimmon pulp, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup flour, ½ cup nuts, ½ cup chopped dates. Beat persimmon pulp which must be very ripe and soft well. Add sugar, milk, cinnamon, salt and soda. Then add flour, raisins and dates. Bake in greased covered casserole for 1½ hours at 250 degrees.

Animal Question Box

Care Required in Using Chain Collars

BY B. ROBERT MAGGS

A happy and prosperous New Year to all, especially pet owners. And may I add my very grateful thanks to literally dozens of kind people who sent me cards and flowers and in many cases took time to write kind and thoughtful letters. If all your good wishes for my renewed health can help, I should be a well man in very short order.

B.N. wants to know what good "choke chain" collars are and how you use them.

A—A choke chain collar is a nickel or chrome-plated chain of varying length, depending on the size of the dog it is to be used upon, with a large loop in each end. You hold one of the loops in one hand, passing the chain through this loop. The larger adjustable circle so made is then placed over the dog's head, forming the collar. There is, of course a right and wrong way to do this. The shop where you buy the chain should be able to explain the correct way to place it on your dog. But right here I should like to emphasize that such a collar should never be left on a dog when not being used for its intended purpose. The dog man wander off and step through the loop and become so entangled that it cannot walk. Or it could snag on a bush. A chain collar is used for training purposes, such as training to heel, to sit or for any purpose in which full control of the dog is required. Never use it with a steady pull, but always with a sharp tug when you give the word of command.

It does not, as some people think, choke the dog or injure it in any manner. The best demonstration of its use is given by the Dog Obedience Training School.

Mrs. M. A. asks how she should go about starting a collection of tropical fish.

A—About the easiest to raise is the guppy, and from there on you can go into the Siamese fantail, zebras, etc. The pet shop where you buy your equipment, thermostats and tanks, etc., have several species they will be glad to tell you about, also booklets on their care. This can be a very interesting hobby and the expense depends entirely on yourself.

W.B. Is it true that a horse has continuous digestion?

A—Yes, a horse has no gall bladder.

Miss T. What is actually the "voice of the turtle?"

A—It's a gentle, murmurous cooing and refers to the turtle doves, not the reptile.

B.H. Do all spiders spin webs?

A—No. Some species just prowl around and find their prey at random. Some others ambush their victims, hiding in flowers and pouncing on the insects that visit them.

Mrs. S.McC. Is there really such a thing as a white elephant?

A—Not literally. Very rarely there is an albino elephant, but it is generally a pale yellowish-grey with pink spots.

A.W. Can a horse really sleep standing up?

A—Yes, and so can many other big beasts, including elephants. When a horse stands stock still and relaxes, its leg joints automatically lock to support it. Actually, a horse can only sleep lightly and fitfully in a recumbent position and it seldom stays down for any length of time because its heavy weight pressed against the ground makes it sore and cramped and its breathing laborious.

Labor Peace Outlook Termed 'Not Good'

Prospects of labor peace this year are not good, according to A. P. Rayment, secretary of Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council (AFL-TLC).

"Troubles at the Hart Dam are still unsettled, the fishermen's dispute has resulted in serious loss to B.C.'s economy; the directive by the School Trustees' Association to school boards advising them they should not give way to requests for increased salaries and further emphasizing that negotiations should be protacted with board's to submit wage reductions if teachers go to arbitration; all do not add to prospects of a peaceful settlement."

"There is a great deal of dissatisfaction also with the provincial government's unrealistic attitude toward labor problems, as exemplified in its plan to reduce the present Labor Relations Board to a part-time basis with a cut in members' salaries."

"In the interest of the economy of the province, it is to be hoped these difficulties will be overcome," he concluded.

Victoria Looks Back on Event-Filled Year

With the advent of the New Year, sometimes haughty, sometimes naughty old Victoria can peer back over her proud shoulder at another event-filled year now added to the many she so gracefully wears.

The late, little-lamented 1952, which creakingly and reluctantly took leave of the capital city at midnight last night, left in its wake scores of memories.

Memories of events in the busy B.C. city left some hearts full and some empty.

But events which nevertheless [illegible] filled the columns of The Daily Colonist with stories which were of vital interest to every Victorian.

Some of the year's highlights in chronological order were:

January

January 1—Leading local story of the first day of the new year before newly-elected Mayor Claude Harrison had taken office was that the federal government had offered to buy back the Gordon Head airpark property from the city for $20,000, the same sum as the city paid for the 57-acre site in 1947.

January 2—Mayor and council members officially take office. New broom air of confidence fills air.

January 3—Many mourn old friend, as giant 300-year-old fir in Beacon Hill Park comes down.

January 4—Council decides to accept firm bid of $87 each, at existing rates, made by eastern firm for $439,000 worth of school and street improvement bonds.

January 14—Unions hopping mad over statement by D. K. Penfold, Public Utilities Commission chairman, that the city should fight wage increases, not rate increases.

January 18—Coalition ends after 10 years as Premier Byron Johnson fires Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb, leader of B.C. Tories.

January 19—Barely used to his office chair, mayor says he will definitely run in next provincial election.

February

February 7—Shocked Victoria awakes to find that beloved monarch King George VI had died in his sleep. Churches packed. Twenty-one gun salute fired here to mark accession to Throne of Queen Elizabeth II, flying home from Africa with husband, Duke of Edinburgh.

February 7—W. A. C. Bennett, MLA, predicts a sweeping Social Credit victory in next general provincial election.

February 8—Victoria Athletics rescued from extinction by save-baseball drive, which saw generous Victorians donate $10,000.

February 11—B.C. Electric announces intention to seek straight 10-cent cash fare for buses.

February 12—Usual May 24 celebrations to be canceled because of mourning for the King, announces the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee.

March

March 9—HMCS Sioux home again after an 11-month second tour in Korean waters.

March 16—Intrepid B. Robert Maggs, SPCA inspector, in his biggest game hunt which left him torn and bleeding, bags 100-plus cats in answer to dying wish of wealthy district woman of Twin Cove, Cadboro Bay. A cat lover, the woman had allowed her estate to become overrun with the felines.

March 19—Ottawa appropriates staggering $4,159,000 in this fiscal year for projects on Vancouver Island and adjacent islands.

April

April 1—This day found hundreds of Victoria residents flummoxed by a Colonist April Fool Day story about tourist-attracting sea serpent Caddy being caught in the Inner Harbor. Story carried by-line of Kosmos Kagool and cut inset into story showed a very hairy ape above the name Kagool. Switchboards of Colonist, police, fire department were swamped with calls asking if the submarine net lowered to prevent Caddy's escape would affect ships' sailings.

April 5—City stirred by pluck of giant-killing, up-from-the-basement Cougars' victory over New Westminster Royals, to gain finals of Pacific Coast Hockey League.

April 6—Amid muttered threats by citizens to walk to work or buy a bicycle, the B.C. Electric today put into force the new 10-cent, straight cash fare.

April 30—This not-very-bright April closed with the city still swinging the economy axe—police budget trimmed by $9,000.

May

May 1—All charitable and special grants slashed out of Victoria's expenditures. Result: saving of $211,800, made up of $186,000 spending cut and $57,800 increase in estimated revenue. Mill rate reduced 4½ mills to 56½ mills.

May 13—Twenty-year-old Beverly Fulton, 93 Bewdley Avenue, proves herself to be clever girl by topping Victoria College lists with 89.5 average.

May 15—In a swift onslaught, Colonist "saboteurs"—reporter-photographer team of Brian Loughnan, Maury Gwynne and J. T. Jones—planted "bombs" and demolished Victoria's defense vitals.
